

No Disassemble Joins forces with College of Hip Hop Knowledge for Wide Release Distribution

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: Austin, Texas | May 18, 2020
Austin electronic musician Christopher Jordan, A.K.A. “No Disassemble”, and the HC Universal Network have signed with Austin-based music label The College of Hip Hop Knowledge for wide release digital distribution of No Disassemble’s entire music catalogue through Sony Orchard. Including his latest album Interstellar Lovechild, all available on May 31st, 2020.

Incorporating styles ranging from traditional electronica and ambient to experimental and even brainwave synthesis into his music. No Disassemble is often compared to such electronic artists as Kraftwerk, Sphongle and Silver Apples.

Originally from Houston, musician and audio engineer Christopher Jordan began his journey of composing and recording electronic music in the late 90s and was a monthly recurring guest for five years on 90.1 KPFT’s Sunday avant-garde music program. Since that time, Christopher has recorded numerous albums varying from standard electronic music, to albums incorporating the frequencies of the planets and binaural beats. Christopher has also been experimenting in the studio with making music utilizing real-time brainwaves to drive his synthesizers and producing mixed media visualizations to his music.

Most recently Christopher has been publishing his music through the HC Universal Network where he produces and hosts numerous podcasts as well as composing music for use by podcasters within this network and beyond.

The music of No Disassemble is available for 24/7 streaming at his website NoDisassemble.com and available for purchase through Sony Orchard on Spotify, iTunes, Amazon and most digital distribution platforms.

A preview of No Disassemble’s latest album Interstellar Lovechild available for media to review at the following link: <https://promo.theorchard.com/wGoNAKKnXtauchCpRDxB>

For official preview links of other albums and general media inquiries, please contact No Disassemble via the HC Universal Network at (ChrisJordan@HCUniversalNetwork.com) or call (207) 409-9684.

