

NO DISASSEMBLE

Electronic Soundscapes From The Cosmic Aether

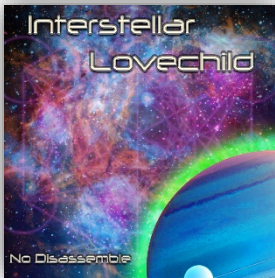

Incorporating styles ranging from traditional electronica and ambient to experimental and even brainwave synthesis into his music. No Disassemble is often compared to such electronic artists as Kraftwerk, Sphongle and Silver Apples.

Originally from Houston, musician and audio engineer Christopher Jordan began his journey of composing and recording electronic music in the late 90s and was a monthly recurring guest for five years on 90.1 KPFT's Sunday avant-garde music program.

Since that time, Christopher has recorded numerous albums varying from standard electronic music, to albums incorporating the frequencies of the planets and binaural beats. On recent albums he has also been experimenting in the studio making music utilizing real-time brainwaves to drive his synthesizers and producing mixed media visualizations to his music.

Most recently Christopher has been publishing his music through the HC Universal Network where he produces and hosts numerous podcasts as well as composing music for use by podcasters within this network and beyond.

The music of No Disassemble is available for 24/7 streaming at NoDisassemble.com and available for purchase through Sony Orchard on Spotify, iTunes, Amazon and major digital distribution platforms.
